The Cocoa Association of Asia (CAA) is proud to organize another For Member by Members event. This time, we partnered with the Rainforest Alliance to share and introduce the Rainforest Alliance Sustainable Agriculture Standard 2020.

The cocoa and chocolate industry faces significant social, economic, and environmental sustainability challenges. Climate change, deforestation, low income, lack of interest from young generation to become farmer, poor working conditions, and child labor are among the issues affecting cocoa farmers and nature around the world.

The Rainforest Alliance is working to tackle these issues and move towards a more sustainable cocoa sector by developing the new Sustainable Agriculture Standard. The merger of the Rainforest Alliance and UTZ in 2018 was a natural moment for us to combine our experience and develop a strong, forward-looking approach to certification that is fit for these challenges now facing sustainable agriculture and related supply chains.

Session Objectives

The session will provide insights on how the Rainforest Alliance Sustainable Agriculture Standard can help companies achieve their sustainability goals and address the rapidly increasing demands from consumers and destination countries for more transparency in cocoa supply chain before considering the programme for your organization .
